

Ques. You have often seen Mr. Sampson speak to him or call his attention to do this, that or the other thing.

Ans. Yes sir.

Ques. Did you ever see him do it by cuffing him over the head. Ans. No, I never saw anything of the kind.

Ques. Did you ever see him pinch him with hot tongs.

Ans. No, nor anybody else ever saw him.

Ques. Would you believe if anybody told you, that Mr. Sampson pinched him with hot tongs. Ans. I do not believe anything of the kind.

Ques. Were you in the habit of going into the engine room from all directions, just as yours would happen to take you. Ans. Yes, went as often by the underground passage as any way.

Ques. Whether you would go in generally quickly.

Ans. Yes, often the case upon the run.

Ques. Would you make the same statement with reference to his treatment of Sweeney as you have with reference to his treatment of Peter Huines. Ans. It would be a hard hearted man that would do anything to Sweeney. He was a man of very peculiar habits from his insanity; he would take up a shovel, or a piece of coal or a chip and would jabber away; if you spoke to him
