

A. To the officer whose business it is to carry out the wish.

Q. You say those orders haven't been obeyed?

A. Yes sir.

Q. Do you remember of discharging a man for sending meat into the halls for food that was not suitable for food? A. Yes, sir, very well.

Q. Has he been on the witness stand here tonight?

A. He has.

Q. Has he told the truth so far as you know? A. So far as I recollect.

Q. Would you discharge any person for doing the same thing? A. I certainly should.

By Mr. Boss:

Q. Have you ever seen any <sup>intention</sup> ~~thing~~ on the part of the steward and treasurer to control any part of the business which is yours to look after? A. Never. Entirely loyal.

By Mr. Lakin:

Q. And entirely subordinate? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Hall:

Q. Whose duty is it, when a patient escapes, to go after him? A. Whoever I send.

Q. Does the law make it anybody's duty? A. Not that I am aware.