

Q. Have you frequently conversed with patients themselves? A. I have.

Q. With attendants? A. I have.

Q. Have you been open to hear the complaints of patients always? A. Yes, sir, I think I have. At any rate, I have endeavored to be so, and I have ~~no~~ reason to believe that the patients, from the way and manner that they would talk to me, felt that they were at liberty to say any thing they wished to.

Q. From all sources of information, your inquiries among patients and your own observation, what has been the result as to the treatment of patients by the attendants during all the times you have been in office?

Dr. Butler: Do you propose to ask what the patients pay?

Mr. Baker: I do not ask what the patients pay. I ask him as one of the official trustees of the institution to state the result of his entire information from whatever source derived.

Q. You may state A. I have already stated what really covers that question, that I have usually found the attendants attentive
