

I have been puzzled to account for this paucity of abnormal land marks. There are no evidences of occupation, such as shell heaps, probably from the lack of clam "flats." As far as I know, no burial mounds have been located. Levet called it a deserted territory as far as Indians were concerned in 1624 but referred to their planting fields (?). Still they must have lived and died there.

Finally, what do you say on Wannametonnemy?

Yours sincerely

M. S. Edwards